About Us

Fraternalities and sororities have been an influential and important component of the undergraduate student experience at USU for over 100 years. When fraternalities and sororities function in accordance with their stated values and adhere to the USU Fraternity & Sorority Life (FSL) Relationship Agreement, the entire University community receives positive benefits from their student leadership, involvement, service, and the various positive developmental benefits from individual members.

“At Utah State, there are a variety of ways to get involved . . . Membership in a FSL chapter will provide you with the foundation necessary to become a leader and a driving force for positive change on campus and in the community. Each fraternity and sorority strive to create well-rounded individuals through leadership training, innovative programming and life-skill development.”

Our Vision

We envision Fraternity & Sorority Life (FSL) at Utah State University as a dynamic and inclusive community that empowers individuals to cultivate lifelong connections, foster personal growth, and make meaningful contributions to society.

Our Mission

1

Endeavor to make Utah State University a better place for everyone

2

Facilitate the co-curricular development of FSL members

3

Promote the growth of the FSL community and its chapters

Our Value

Fraternity and sorority life (FSL), plays a significant role in the vibrant tapestry of university communities. These organizations provide students with a sense of belonging, personal growth, and opportunities for leadership and service that extend well beyond their college years. For universities, they are invaluable in fostering a sense of community and connection among students.

Moreover, FSL organizations are crucial in cultivating leaders and promoting a culture of philanthropy and service. Members of fraternities and sororities frequently engage in various community service activities, volunteering their time and resources to make a positive impact beyond the campus. This spirit of giving back not only benefits local communities but also reflects positively on the university itself. It showcases a commitment to producing well-rounded graduates who are not only academically accomplished but also socially responsible citizens.

Furthermore, Greek life contributes to campus diversity by offering students a chance to connect with peers from different backgrounds and interests. These organizations often host a wide range of events and activities, promoting inclusivity and broadening the horizons of their members.

The bonds formed in fraternities and sororities often lead to lifelong friendships, and these networks can enhance students' overall college experience.

The value of fraternity and sorority life lies in its ability to create a supportive, tight-knit community within the larger university setting that benefits both the institution and the surrounding community.

Our Councils

Interfraternity Council (IFC)

An IFC exists where there are two or more North American Interfraternity Conference (NIC) members, or associate member fraternities on a campus. The Council's purpose is to advance fraternity interests and values on campus and provide interfraternal leadership to the entire community. The Council is advised by the FSL Advisor.

College Panhellenic Council (CPC)

A College Panhellenic Council is established where there are two or more National Panhellenic Conference (NPC) sororities, or associated sororities on campus. The purpose of the Council is to promote and advance the interest of women's-only sororities. The Council is advised by the FSL Advisor.

Our Chapters

Fraternalities and sororities have a long history at Utah State. As membership, interest, and resources eb and flow over time, so too do the type, number, and specific organizations that make up the entirety of the FSL community.

Because of these varying circumstances, the recognized chapters at USU have been divided into three categories for simplicity and the purposes of this report.

Outgoing chapters are those that were, during the course of one or more semesters, recognized student organizations, but will not be in the indefinite future.

Current chapters are those who are currently recognized student organizations at USU.

Incoming chapters are those who have expressed interest in becoming chapters at USU or who are currently in the process of doing so.

A Year in Review

Each semester, chapters are required to submit a Semester Summary Report (SSR) which asks for a variety of information regarding the chapter's activities and milestones over the past semester. These are a few highlights from the aggregate community results derived from the reports, as well as data pulled from the semesterly grade checks.

Individual Impact

“FSL at USU is a place where I found a genuine community that cared about me, offering a home away from home. I’m fortunate to have been involved in a chapter that offers a safe, transformative space for members to grow, be themselves, and give back.”

Abraham Rodriguez

Clara Alder

“Fraternity and sorority life at Utah State has brought some of the best and most involved leaders here on campus. We pride ourselves on the outstanding students who have come through FSL.”

“Membership in an FSL chapter provided me with the foundation necessary to become a leader and a driving force on this campus and in the community. FSL members have been involved in so many areas on campus.”

Erik Fogth

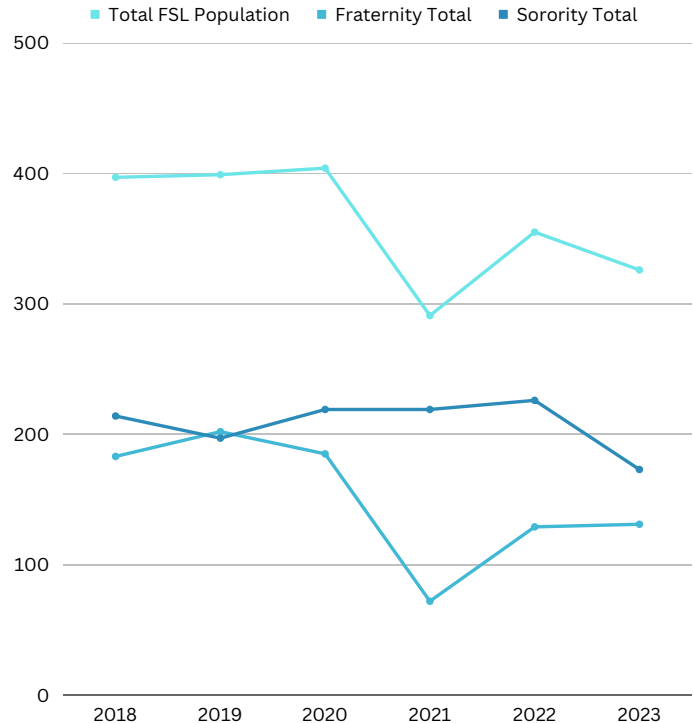

Summary

Utah State University's Fraternity and Sorority Life program has undoubtedly made significant strides this year. These milestones include:

- Two more FSL organizations electing to sign the USU FSL RA and affiliate with the institution
- For the first time ever, the community will have a dedicated physical space in the Taggart Student Center
- The establishment of Sigma Alpha, the first new sorority at USU in 23 years

Despite these advancements, FSL faces ongoing challenges in its quest to achieve true vitality and excellence. It grapples with certain persistent issues that hinder its full flourishing, such as shrinking membership, risk management concerns, and a general attitude of indifference toward the USU FSL Relationship Agreement.

Overcoming these challenges is essential for Utah State University's Fraternity and Sorority Life to not only continue its positive trajectory but also reach its fullest potential in providing students with a rich and fulfilling collegiate experience.
