

Quiz:

1. This woman has three buildings named in her honor at the Logan campus of Utah State University.
2. This woman, who worked as a librarian at the Topaz Japanese Internment Camp in Utah during World War II, has a residence hall named after her.
3. Two buildings on the USU campus are named for a married couple, both distinguished scientists. The woman has a residence hall named after her.
4. This woman served as the last Dean of Women at USU and the first Director of the Women's Center, which was opened by First Lady Betty Ford.
5. This woman was an immigrant from Norway and a professor in Textiles and Clothing.
6. This woman was a leader in the Utah State Farm Bureau Federation and 4-H.
7. This woman was an artist and endowed a ceramics collection at USU.
8. Educating children was a top priority for this woman, who has a building named after her, as well as a statue erected in her honor.
9. These sisters were long-term patrons of the arts.
10. You'll find USU's Utah Climate Center and the Remote Sensing/Geographic Information Systems Laboratory, along with other services, in the building named in honor of this woman. (Hint: There is also a statue of her on campus.)

In 2020, Utah State University joined the nation and state in celebrating significant voting rights anniversaries. As the university honored these important milestones in our history, and as part of those celebrations, Utah State University also declared this the Year of the Woman.

Answers:

1. Emma Eccles Jones
2. Laura Merrill
3. Ethelyn O. Greaves
4. Helen Lundstrom
5. Johanna Moen
6. Ella V. Reeder
7. Nora Eccles Harrison
8. Edith Bowen
9. Manon Caine Russell and Kathryn Caine Wanlass
10. Janet Quinney Lawson

WALK
WELL
Utah State University®

Buildings Named in Honor of

Notable Women

UtahStateUniversity®

Utah State University's Logan Campus includes 20 buildings named in honor of women. This walking tour provides insights and stories into these notable women. Take part in the scavenger hunt and answer questions to learn more about the history of women at USU.

1st Row:
Emma Eccles Jones,
Johanna Moen

2nd Row:
Nora Eccles Harrison

3rd Row:
Edith Bowen,
Helen Lundstrom

4th Row:
Ethelyn O. Greaves

1 SOUTH CAMPUS HOUSING
 South Campus Housing was completed in 1958 as women's dormitories. Named for prominent civic leaders and educators from campus and the community, the residence halls did not become co-ed until the early 1990s.

2 RUSSELL WANLASS PERFORMANCE HALL
 The Manon Caine Russell Kathryn Caine Wanlass Performance Hall opened in January 2006. The building is a gift from sisters Manon Caine Russell and Kathryn Caine Wanlass and is a space for small acoustical performances.

3 NORA ECCLES HARRISON MUSEUM OF ART
 The Nora Eccles Harrison Museum of Art was founded in 1982 through a gift from the Nora Eccles Treadwell Foundation. The museum provides educational opportunities for the campus and the community, all free of charge.

4 JANET QUINNEY LAWSON BUILDING
 The Janet Quinney Lawson Building is one of the oldest on campus and has been used for many purposes over the years, though its original purpose is unknown. Records confirm the building was used as an airport hangar during WWII, and later a photo lab, and a firehouse. Today, the building houses the Information Technology department, USU's Utah Climate Center and the Remote Sensing/Geographic Information Systems Laboratory, and bears the name of Janet Quinney Lawson, who is known for giving time and financial support to many projects including the 2002 Winter Olympics in Salt Lake City, the Quinney College of Natural Resources, and the Eccles Science and Learning Center.

5 EMMA ECCLES JONES EDUCATION BUILDING
 Prior to the completion of the Emma Eccles Jones Education Building in 1990, the College of Education was housed in the Ray B. West Building, currently home to the English department. At the time of the Education Building dedication, Emma Eccles Jones was 91 years old.

6 EDITH BOWEN LABORATORY SCHOOL
 The Edith Bowen Laboratory School was built on the USU Logan campus in 1957 as part of the College of Education. The current facility was built in 2004 and continues to bear the name of Edith Bowen in honor of her innovative teaching techniques and teacher training.

7 EMMA ECCLES JONES EARLY CHILDHOOD EDUCATION & RESEARCH CENTER
 The Emma Eccles Jones Early Childhood Education and Research Center opened in 2010 to house research and services related to multiple forms of education, and family and human development.

8 DOLORES DORÉ ECCLES CENTER FOR EARLY CARE & EDUCATION
 The Dolores Doré Eccles Center for Early Care & Education is housed in the Emma Eccles Jones Early Childhood Education and Research Center. Supported by a generous donation from the Eccles Foundation, the center seeks to support children's growth and learning.

9 JONES HALL (EMMA ECCLES)
 Built in 1962 by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, Jones Hall was given its current name when the university acquired these dormitories in the 1980s and renamed them in honor of university faculty and benefactors.

10 LUNDSTROM STUDENT CENTER
 Built as part of the David O. McKay Student Living Center, the student center was renamed after Helen Lundstrom, last Dean of Women and first director of the Women's Center, when the university acquired the land in the 1980s.

Length of the walk is approximately 1.52 miles.

